

28 Why do Christians always think they are right?

- To be a Christian is to know one's failings. Most acts of Christian worship involve Christians admitting they get it wrong as much as the next person
- Nevertheless Christians are encouraged to be sure of God's faithfulness (2 Corinthians 3:5). This can come across wrongly as arrogant self assurance
- If Jesus is the truth he is also the 'light that enlightens everyone' (John 1:9) so that Christianity admits the truth of Jesus is found outside Christian allegiance
- The good news of Christ has caused offence from the earliest days (1 Corinthians 1:23) but that doesn't mean its messengers are beyond reproach
